ACROSS THE AUCTION BLOCK

1960 Pontiac Catalina revved bidding to $7,000

BY WILLIAM FLOOD

AUBURN, Ind. — Wegner Auctioneers powered through two classic vehicles, eight motorcycles, 30 bicycles, a handful of mopeds and scooters, and one three-wheeled ATV at the

Hughey Auction in Auburn

The hybrid event was conducted onsite with absentee bidding via Proxibid. Of the 60 lots, 45 items sold onsite, including every bicycle, and 15 of the motorized vehicles. The remaining five lots sold to online bidders.

The auction commenced with the bicycles, and from the outset prices were strong. Lot one, a 1940s Wards Hawthorn ladies 26-inch Cruiser sold for $250. It was followed by a 1966 Schwinn 5-speed Fastback 20-inch model in original, unrestored condition that went to $350.

In full, 18 of the collectible bicycles sold for more than $100, the highest amount ($575) going for a 1970s Schwinn Fastback 5-speed boy's bike in excellent condition. Among the more unusual pieces were a 1990s Schwinn Stingray "Orange County Chopper"

Above: Commanding the auction's highest bid ($7,000) was this 1960 Pontiac Catalina Tripower two-door hardtop, with a new engine and ready for the final stages of restoration.

Dy-Dee Dolls advertised as 'almost human'

BY LARRY LEMASTERS

Effanbee Doll Company made Dy-Dee Dolls beginning in 1933. Bernard Fleischer and Hugo Baum founded the Effanbee Doll Company, but neither of the two partners were doll makers.

The two men studied the toy market, especially the changing market of the Depression Era, and decided the time was right to entice young girls with a new doll.

Dy-Dee was advertised as "The Almost Human Doll." The earliest Dy-Dee dolls had rubber bodies and rubberized composition heads, which allowed the dolls to be fed through their open mouths. Special tubing ran from the doll's mouth to her buttocks, which had a plug that allowed Dy-Dee to wet on demand.

Dy-Dee could be bathed without getting water into the body, she drank from a cup, blew soap bubbles, and she had soft rubber ears that girls could clean using Q-tips. She was the perfect doll, and she quickly became one of the best-selling dolls of the 1930s.

Effanbee, 15-inch tall Dy-Dee doll, circa 1940s, with original "wet" outfit that was offered for sale on the Internet for $55.

See LeMasters page 8

Above: Rare, Effanbee Dy-Dee accessory card, circa 1940s, with bubble pipe, spoon, Q-tips, and baby bottle. This mint condition accessory card is valued at $385.

selling for $140. Lower prices tended to revolve around more modern or commonplace models like a 1950s Columbia 26-inch women’s coaster bike ($25) and a 70s-era Schwinn LeTour II 27-inch men’s 10-speed ($30) although a restored 1950s Murray chain-drive tricycle got snatched up for just $50.

Motorcycles comprised the second round, bringing the auction’s second and third highest bids. Second place at $5,250 went to a 2016 Harley Davidson Nostalgic Springer motorcycle, with a 1450cc engine, professionally assembled from 95 percent Harley Davidson parts. The cycle was listed in “as new” condition with just 1,000 miles. Third place bringing $4,500 was for a 2005 Harley Davidson FXDI model with 1400cc engine, detachable windshield, and luggage rack. It was listed in “excellent condition” with 8,450 miles. The remaining, primarily vintage motorcycles included a 1962 CZ 250 in running condition that sold for $1,025 and a 1962 Yamaha Trailmaster 50, also in running condition, that took $650.

For the environmentally conscious, there were scooters and mopeds available. One buyer, no doubt hearing echoes of the Hondells’ “Little Honda”, picked up a 1965 Honda 90 cc in good cosmetic shape but with a frozen engine for $500. A 1980s Taiwan-made Whizzer moped, in running condition sold for $700. And, a 1982 Suzuki FA50 Pit Bike, in restorable but running condition sold for $250.

Next came project pieces. Looking like a “barn find” was a 1950s Cushman Eagle scooter. That full restoration candidate sold for $330. More intact and in better cosmetic shape was a 1960s Allstate scooter that garnered $200. More like a box of parts, grabbing $100, was a 1950 CZ 125 with gas tank, fender, and wheel. Similar was the lot of 1970s Indian “parts bikes” mopeds that also sold for $100.

After all the two-wheeled fanfare came the auction’s biggest hit — a 1960 Pontiac Catalina two-door hardtop with a fresh 389 engine, running well. It was listed as 95 percent complete, with professional body restoration, still needing paint Above: Have you ever seen a chain-drive tricycle? They’ve been more popular in Europe than in the U.S. This Huffy was one of the few made stateside. It sold for $50.

Above: CZ motorcycles were produced in Czechoslovakia starting in the 1930s. There was not much left of this 1950s model, but the parts still sold for $100.

Above: Small displacement motorcycles like these were popular in the 1960s. Even with a frozen engine, this Honda went for $500.

and interior. It sold for $7,000. Next came a 1985 GMC 4X2, 3/4-ton step-side pickup with a 305 V-8, 4-speed manual transmission, and an 8-foot box. It was listed as a southern vehicle with good sheet metal - a restoration project with extra parts (fenders, hood, doors, tailgate, seats, and box sides). It was picked up for $2,500.

A Honda 125 three-wheel ATV in excellent running condition sold for $875.

For more information visit wegnerauctioneers.com or call (989) 928-8092.

Above: This Schwinn “chopper” from the 1990s sold for $140.

Right: Not everything at the auction had two wheels. This 3-wheel Honda ATV caught a lot of attention. It sold for $875 at an auction conducted by Wegner Auctioneers on Oct. 3 in Indiana.

Above: Whizzer motorized bicycles were produced in the U.S. from 1939 to 1965. This 1980s model was made in Taiwan and sold for $700.

Christmas book brings lots of information down the chimney

Maybe it's rediscovering the boxes of ornaments stored in the attic for the past 11 months, or the chance to mail a greeting card to friends not seen nor heard from since last year this time. Perhaps it's the knotted strings of lights, the Christmas china, or the abundance of Santa gewgaws. Oh, and the gifts. There are lots of reasons people love Christmas.

Whether Dec. 25 is celebrated as a secular holiday, spent in church, or a combination of the two, there's no denying that this one day, and the season surrounding it, elicits widespread enthusiasm,

BOOK REVIEW

BY BARBARA MILLER BEEM

from subdued to way over the top. But when all is said and done, the one thing that makes this holiday so universally appealing is the fact that it's all about tradition. Now, at a time when many of us are searching for something warm and fuzzy, the familiarity of Christmas is particularly comforting. And so, for that reason, during this unpredictable time, I'm recommending Right: Christmas: 1960 - Present (A collector's guide to decorations and customs) by Robert Brenner, Schiffer Publishing, Ltd., 2005 (second edition), soft-bound, 160 pages.

"Christmas: 1960 - Present" is a valuable resource for collectors and great fun for anyone who enjoys the holiday and wants to learn more.

Christmas:1960 - Present (A collector's guide to decorations and customs) by Robert Brenner.

From the start, I enjoyed my copy of Christmas as I flipped through and looked at the pictures (more about them later). And I kept seeing recurring themes ("Our Trees," "Our Cards," "Under Our Trees," and so on). I was a bit confused. That's when I got smart and turned back to the "Contents" page and realized that there is method to this madness. Poor Robert might easily have filled five volumes, but he crammed it all into one. Each chapter (after the introduction) covers a decade. Once I saw how he had organized a ton of information, I began to appreciate the fact that he'd taken a rather unwieldy subject and tied it up with a bow. Bless him.

Nothing is perfect. The print is on the small side.

Just saying, those of us who feel nostalgic about Christmases dating from the second half of the 20th century might feel visually challenged. To you I say, get out your “readers,” turn on an extra reading light, and enjoy.

Within the pages of this softbound text, Brenner dives into great detail on just about everything you need to know about collecting Christmas. Curious about bubble lights, silver trees, the Elf on the Shelf? It’s covered here. The Swingin’ Sixties, Bicentennial days, the time when we got nostalgic or thought we were all Martha Stewart? Read on.

I’ve written about Christmas collectibles over the years and befriended those who are majorly addicted. And I love picking through my own holiday accumulation. Little wonder, then, that I consider this book to be a treasure trove. Even though some of the information presented is a bit too deep to match my interest at this point in time (there’s a lot of information about European ornament makers, for instance), it is still a good resource to have on the bookshelf. On the other hand, if Christmas decorations were a college major, this would no doubt be the best text for the 101 survey course.

About the images: They’re wonderful, fun, and quirky, all at the same time. And they offer a pictorial overview of a wide range of Christmas collectibles, from Golden Books and nutcrackers to vintage gift wrap and cookie tins. Not surprisingly, there is a good representation of ceramics in the image of Santa, elves, and snowmen. Of course, decorations for the tree (tree toppers and tinsel, lights and ornaments) are well represented. And then there are the various family photographs: I’m sure most readers will find them very similar to ones in their own family albums.

Looking to coordinate a mid-century modern tree with your mid-century décor? Trying to figure out what that inherited family stash of decorations is all about, or hoping to recreate Christmas Past (with apologies to Charles Dickens)? This is your book. Even if you already know 90 percent of what’s inside its covers, it’s good to have it all in one place. For writers (that would be me) or people looking to understand and learn more, this book is a great springboard. And for those who love all things Christmas, this is a “must.”

Above: Pastel-colored 1960s plastic wise men made from 1950s molds. Author Robert Brenner offers decade-by-decade information on a variety of Christmas collectibles.

Montgomery Ward had a monopoly on Dy-Dee dolls when they were first issued, selling the popular dolls in stores and through their famous Montgomery Ward catalogs.

It has been said that Dy-Dee dolls “literally sold by the truckloads” because “every little ‘mama’ in American wanted a Dy-Dee doll.”

Effanbee quickly expanded their drink-and wet line of dolls into the Dy-Dee family, including Dy-Dee-Wee, Dy-Dee-Ette, Dy-Dee-Kin, Dy-Dee-Baby, and Dy-Dee-Jane.

The largest Dy-Dee family doll produced was the 20-inch tall Dy-Dee-Lou.

Toys change, and by the 1970s, Effanbee had quit producing Dy-Dee dolls, but in 1984, the company honored the Dy-Dee doll with two 50th anniversary, commemorative edition dolls, which were only offered until Oct. 31, 1984.

In 2002, Tonner Doll Company purchased Effanbee Doll Company and began reproducing some of the old dolls, including the Dy-Dee dolls.
