Folk art cane walks away with a $4,000 bid

BY WILLIAM

LEMOYNE, Ohio— Demonstrating the staying power of traditional antiques, northwest

Ohio's Stony Ridge Auction Sept. 1 auction brought in some impressive bids. The 433-lot sale was held live, was open for absentee and phone bids, and simulcast online on LiveAuctioneers.

Getting the most fanfare — and achieving the auction's highest winning bid — was a rare hand-carved folk art walking cane from the Civil War era. The 39 inch long staff featured an American eagle with a federal shield at the top. Below it was carved figures of a black man, a Civil War soldier, a Native American, and a shield painted with 117th NY Infantry. The unique piece sold for

Sowerby leader in blue milk glass production

BY LARRY
LEMASTERS

Milk glass refers to opaque white glassware that looks like a poor man's white porcelain. Milk glass originated in Venice, Italy, in the 15th or 16th century where it was known as "opal" glass. Glass companies in nearly every country of the world have since manufactured it.

Milk glass is also known as "vitro-porcelain" glass, a term first used by Sowerby Glassworks for its line of pressed milk glass. However, over the years milk glass has taken on several different colors, including white, green, pink, black, yellow, brown, and blue. All of this glass, regardless of color, has two things in common: 1) it is opaque and translucent glass, and 2) if it is pressed milk glass, it has seams. If it is blown milk glass, it won't have seams.

Milk glass has risen and fallen in popularity over the 500 years in which it has been made. Although it had been manufactured for nearly 350 years in Europe, opaque glass did not begin production in America until the 1850s when companies such as

Boston & Sandwich Glass Company, of Sandwich, Massachusetts, began producing milk glass candlesticks.

The golden years of

GREAT LAKES MARITIME NAUTICAL AUCTION

AT THE SUPER AUCTION IN TIPTON, MI
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 10 AM - SESSION 1
5121 MICHIGAN AVE., TIPTON, MI 49287 ZONE 5

DIRECTIONS: Take Michigan Ave (US-12) to Auction. The Auction is West of Clinton, MI and East of Brooklyn and Onsted, MI. Auction is on the South side of US 12 - look for signs. Tipton is located in the Irish Hills area.

Lifetime Collection from the Estate of Captain Steven Welch of Sault Ste. Marie, MI, Former owner of the Original Soo Locks Boat Tours Company. Captain Welch passed in Jan. 2022 before retiring and completing his dream of opening a non-profit, educational maritime museum. Hundreds of items were kept in custom crates and are now being offered to the highest bidder to settle his estate. Captain Welch was very particular about his collection with a heavy emphasis on recovered artifacts from known Great Lakes shipwrecks. Captain Welch purchased many artifacts from a pioneering wreck diver James P. Mularkey (1931-2017), who was very active on the Great Lakes in the 1960s & 70s. Besides a great selection of Ship Bells, Lanterns, China, Lg. Ship Models & Life Rings, there is an extensive Ephemera collection that includes over 1500 Nautical Postcards sold in groups & many Timetables from every major Passenger Steamship line going back into the 19th century. Since Captain Welch was owner and captain of the Original Soo Locks Boat Tour Company, there is the largest collection of Soo Locks Ephemera ever to come to auction. This includes rare 19th century Documents, Photos, Promotional Brochures & more to be sold in groups. Unique to this collection, there is a group of the English Royal Yacht "Britannia" items including an Officer's Uniform & hat. Also, there are documents & china surrounding the Queen's Royal Visit to Canada commemorating the official opening of the Saint Lawrence Seaway in 1959. This Nautical Collection is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to add rare & hard to find items to your own collection.

ALL PHOTOS & LOT DESCRIPTIONS PROVIDED BY DOUG DALTON AUCTIONEER

NOTE: Captain Welch was very aware of the importance of having items that do not violate the 1988 "National Abandoned Shipwreck Act" or the Michigan statutes that created sanctuaries that the Michigan Department of Environment, Great Lakes, and Energy (EGLE) govern. Because of his desire to create a "Public" Museum, he saved every document that covered his purchases of salvaged ship items and any further correspondence about the items history. We do not have written permission to publish these documents. We will however be placing these documents with the items they describe and will be available for visual inspection at the preview time advertised. With these documents, Captain Welch proves that he did not remove any items from protected Great Lakes marine sanctuary zones and he bought most of his salvaged items from the famous diver James Mularkey (died 2017) purchasing almost 20 years ago, way past any statute of limitation stated in the State of Michigan laws.

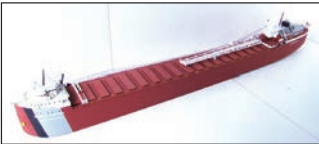

Auctioneer's Note: After 45 years of auctioning 100s of antique filled estates, I (Doug Dalton Auctioneer) have never had the opportunity to sell a major nautical collection of this caliber & provenance. We have taken over 1400 photos & have made detailed listings of the lots including sizes plus we have provided condition reports and the provenance on salvaged objects. When we found duplicate items in the ephemera material, we only took photos of 1 piece. Keep that in mind when reviewing the auction pictures and reading the text listings. We also found many of the large metal objects had custom wood shipping crates. While most of those can be reused for future shipping, some will need repairs from their original shipping use. This auction is being hosted by Braun & Helmer Auction Service at their Auction Gallery in Tipton, Michigan (Irish Hills area). All financial transactions including any on-line billing & shipping will be handled by them. Bidding will be both Live and Online, so make your plans & mark your calendar!

shaped tin and wood maple sugar molds went for $475. Another rarity, a tiger maple, heart-shaped butter stamp bid to $450.

Holiday-themed lots were also prevalent in this auction. They included 31 Santa figures and related items. Among them was a 9 ½-inch antique German Belsnickel Santa candy container that sold for $850. The figure donned a rabbit fur beard and faux fur trimmed cloth and stood upon a mica decorated base. Another Belsnickle Santa reached $750. The 12-inch 19th-century figure, in overall good condition, wore a crepe paper costume over a stuffed wood body. A papier-mache Santa Claus and sleigh store display reached yet another three-figure bid at $600.

Other Christmas items sold well including a 6-pound Christmas bell windmill weight that went for $600. A 5-inch German Schafer & Vater porcelain Christmas flask, with a replaced stopper, sold for $325. For decorating under the tree was a set of paper houses, church buildings, and wooden figures that went home for $300.

Popular opinion might

suggest that formal china has lost its appeal. This auction would indicate otherwise. The hammer went down at $525 for an early 1900s French L.R.L. Limoges 12-piece table setting. The excellent-condition set was gilded and featured hand-painted game birds. Another buyer parted with $375 for a 12-piece set of Vienna plates. The neoclassical set, in excellent condition, featured beehive marks and images of Achilles, Jupiter, and Venus, among other figures from Greek mythology. To complement the set was a 10-inch mid-century cut glass pitcher and six tumblers featuring gilding cut away to reveal clear glass. The collection sold for $175.

Antique toys were numerous; winning bids ran the gamut from high three-figures to under $20. A working condition cast iron “bad accident” mechanical bank from the late 1800s-early 1900s went for $700. At the other end of the spectrum, a steam toy water mill with a mill worker figurine only reached $20. And, a group of tin toys hailing from the 1920s to the 1950s got snagged for just $5.

Auction-wide, half of the lots sold in the three-figure range. Plenty of opportunities came for those with modest budgets. A 19th-century set of wood butter paddles sold for just $10 as did a framed 19th-century chromolithograph of whales and dolphins by Henry Johnson. A $5 bid won a collection of ephemera with 1907 recipe cards, 1940s ration checks, and a 1947 Cincinnati auction catalog.

Some surprising lots were passed over. Among them was a late 19th century Ohio pine and poplar school master’s desk, that had pre-bid estimates between $250 and $500. Also passed was a six-piece Art Deco agate marble desk set which had pre-bid estimates as high as $250. Perhaps those will reappear in one of Stony Ridge’s future sales, alongside another batch of enticing traditional antiques.

Business Closing Sale

Dear Friends,

Thank you for the opportunity to provide historical architectural elements and unique antiques for the past 50 years. I have sold my 1927 Art Deco building in Ypsilanti and will be closing my shop by the end of this year.

I wish to extend a discount of 25% off my vast inventory as demonstration of my appreciation.

With Gratitude, Reynold Lowe, Owner & Founder

Sway along with the Tiki soundtrack

BY WILLIAM FLOOD

If you haven't heard yet, a tiki revival is afoot, complete with exciting tiki-themed establishments, art, and events. There are modern-day carvers, mixologists, and even bands following in the footsteps of some impressive forebears.

A big part of tiki culture has always been its soundtrack, which like the tiki statues and bamboo furniture, creates a sense of South Seas escapism. Whether in a Polynesian establishment or a home tiki bar, the “correct” music is important to the overall vibe. That, by the way, has nothing to do with Jimmy Buffet or Jamaican steel drums. Rather, it’s rooted in a small handful of musical genres that were part of the original tiki scene in the 1950s and 60s, which have legions of new fans.

Tikiophiles often hunt for original records that hold the enticing sounds and great imagery that was such a part of tiki's heritage. If you would like to outfit your collection with some of that original vinyl, here is a rundown of what to look for.

Exotica

More than any other, the tiki scene became associated with this genre of music. The style emerged in the 1950s, intended to evoke a sense of escapism and being transported to an exotic locale, often in the South Seas. Even Disney drew upon the musical style to create the soundtrack for its Enchanted Tiki Room attraction.

Exotica creates the mental journey by pairing instrumental music with heavy doses of native drumming, ethnic instruments, and even jungle sounds like bird calls and primate screams. The effect often comes across like a score from a South Seas flick. The co-founder of Liberty Records coined the term 'exotica' to describe the evocative elements.

Above: Alfre Apaka helped spread both traditional Hawaiian and Hapa Haole music.

While exotica's roots predate the 1950s, the origins are commonly assigned to virtuoso Les Baxter and his 1952 album, Ritual of the Savage. Among the album's tracks was Quiet Village, which has become a cornerstone of tiki music. Baxter described the tune as a "musical portrait of a tropical village deserted in the midday heat." Baxter continued producing into the 1970s, releasing more than 60 albums that echoed everything from African rhythms to pseudo-space themes.

If Les Baxter put exotica on the map, then it was pianist Martin Denny who brought it to tiki.

In 1954, the infamous Don the Beachcomber asked Denny to perform at the Shell Bar at Honolulu's Hawaiian Village. Denny formed a band for the gig that included Arthur Lyman, who added the vibraphone and jungle calls that became synonymous with exotica music. Denny's 1957 cover of Quiet Village, which contained the signature sounds, earned more acclaim than Baxter's.

Denny described his style as conjuring “what a lot of people imagined the islands to be.” Like Baxter and other exotica artists, Denny incorporated a variety of inspirations into his work, including Afro-Cuban, Middle-eastern, and Asian.

Arthur Lyman eventually struck out on his own. He recorded nearly three-dozen exotica-style albums including the famous records Taboo and Yellow Bird and continued to play to audiences long past tiki's peak.

A handful of other artists were popular during exotica's heyday. They included Mexican composer Juan García Esquivel (known simply as Esquivel) who introduce the space-age and lounge sounds and Hollywood score composer Robert Drasnin who continued in the styles of Baxter and Denny.

Exotica quickly fell out of vogue as baby boomers came of age and eschewed the tastes of their parents.

Hawaiian

In the years around Hawaii's statehood in 1959, there was a frenzy for all things Hawaiian. The entertainment industry attempted to capitalize on the craze with touring acts and recorded music.

The era, known as the “golden age of hula” ran from the Pan Pacific Expo in
