1967 Corvette Stingray raced to $82,000 at Cryderman

BY NANCY KELLY

ARMADA, Mich. — Vintage car and motorcycle enthusiasts were given an opportunity recently to feast their eyes on some rarely seen treasures as Chuck Cryderman & Associates Auctions hosted an online-only extravaganza of vehicles and related items. Boasting 191 motorcycles, 10 automobiles from the 1930s-2000s, plus parts, signs, trailers, and even gas pumps, this was a rare chance to shop an inventory of quality items. There were 551 lots total, and prices listed do not include the buyer's premium.

pack, the star of the auction was the 1967 Rally Red Corvette Stingray convertible. This amazing vehicle featured a Turbojet 427 tri-power 400 HP engine, 4-speed manual transmission, disc brakes, and black interior. It was restored to its original beauty 15 years ago and drove off with a final bid of $82,000.

The next highest finisher was a very interesting car. This 1974 Shelby Cobra Tribute model was a custom built 351 Windsor GT with a high performance Holley carburetor, and many other impressive features. In addition, it sported the image of a cobra snake on the underside of the hood, creating an eye-catching detail on this classy vehicle. With only 23,000 miles, it was claimed with a final bid of $50,000.

Herman Munster: Still monsterishly collectible

BY LARRY LEMASTERS

If you were alive in the mid-1960s, chances are at 7:30 on Thursday evenings, you were in front of your television waiting for The Munsters to begin. The Munsters was a weekly CBS program that aired from 1964 to 1966. It was cancelled after two years because of a head-to-head competition with Batman.

The Munsters premise was a Transylvanian-American family, with gothic features and sensibilities, believes itself to be an "average" American family. The running gag each week was that the characters costumes and appearances were based on classic monsters (Frankenstein, Dracula, etc) found in horror movies of the 1930s and '40s. Each week the show satirized television's typical family sitcoms—the well-meaning father, the nurturing mother, the eccentric live-in relative, the naïve teenager, and the precocious child. The family members resembled, in an oddly humorous way, Frankenstein's monster, the Bride of Frankenstein, Dracula, and other unsavory but fun-loving characters. The main character was Herman Munster, the green faced, 7 feet 6 inch tall, Frankensteinian patriarch of the Munster family.

While many actors have played Herman Munster over the years, Fred Gwynne played the original and best-loved Herman Munster. For the television series, Herman was created by Dr. Victor Frankenstein in 1815 at the University of Heidelberg; although, work on Herman was not completed until 1850. At a young age, Herman left Germany to live in Victorian England where he was adopted by the Munster family of Munster Hall.

Later Herman moved to Transylvania where he in the older models, there were a few nice ones to select from. The 1939 red Ford pickup with black running boards, 3-speed manual transmission and V8 engine was in exceptional condition. It showed 85,773 miles on the odometer and came with new tires and rims. It was reported that the former owner drove it to work on nice days. It left for a new home with a final bid of $18,000. A 1940 gray, 2-door Chevrolet with a 327 Chevy engine, 3 speed transmission, and 12-bolt rugged rear differential plus a Mustang front end looked like it had just driven out of an old movie scene. A high bid of $17,600 was required to take it home.

In a different category, the 1975 yellow Cadillac Eldorado convertible with V8 engine and 88,698 miles was a flashback to a time when large luxury cars were the norm. It came with a removeable matching hard top, was reported to start, run, and drive just fine, and proved popular, drawing a final bid of $9,900. Some of the other automobiles included the tan 1953 Chevrolet Bel Air that closed at $9,900, a silver 2007 Ford Mustang GT Special California tribute edition at $9,700, and a 1940 Chrysler Windsor in need of some repair that still drew a final bid of $5,900.

With 191 vintage motorcycles offered, there were selections from several makers, years, sizes, and conditions. The Harley Davidson 1971 Super Glide Boat Tail sporting the colors red, white, and blue presented an impressive package. It was in great condition, had both an electric and kick start, and some aftermarket parts. This top-selling bike commanded a final bid of $10,900. Not far behind, the 1973 Kawasaki H2 750 Triple proved to be very much in demand despite needing some wiring and body repair. This candy-tone purple racing bike left with a high bid of $9,600. Other motorcycles that did well include a 1977 Triumph T140 that earned a bid of $6,200, a 1968 Royal Enfield 750 Interceptor leaving for $6,100, a 1972 Norton 750 Commando Cafe Racer Special at $5,200, and a 967 BSA A65 650 twin carb Lightning going for a high bid of $4,900. There were dozens more bikes and motorcycle parts also available.

Related items were also offered at this very diverse auction. Two gas pumps were high-selling, popular attractions. The vintage Mobil gas pump manufactured by Gilbert and Barker had been beautifully restored with reproduction glass but still retained the original metal ring. This charming relic closed with a final bid of $2,700. The second was a restored Pure Oil Company Racing Gasoline Tokheim 339 pump which featured their red Firebird logo. While missing the back glass it otherwise was in excellent condition and drew a final bid of $1,700.

A few signs were eagerly claimed during this auction. An original oval Ford blue and white steel sign measuring approximately 4-feet long was stamped “Sales Equipment Co. Detroit, Mich”. It had suffered some damage over the years, including pitting and rust, but this didn’t stop the collectors from driving the final bid up to $2,100. A single-sided, round porcelain Gulf sign with a maker’s mark SPS ’64 that measured approximately 5-feet in diameter closed at $1,700. An approximately 3-foot Citgo 2-sided square porcelain sign drew $600.

For the adventurous members of the bidding audience, a 1958 custom-built old school dragster bearing the name “Soc Hop” was offered. It was equipped with a 1957 Cadillac 365 V8 engine, log-type intake, four 94 carburetors, and a direct drive transmission. The 113 inch wheelbase provided stability. There were many quality parts taken from different manufacturers to truly make this a one-of-a-kind vehicle. It came complete with a custom trailer that tilts back to unload. The package left for its next adventure with a final bid of $6,200.

To finish up with something completely different, there was a very large, top-opening Coca Cola cooler with a well-worn tag that identified it as being manufactured by Westinghouse. To make it even more desirable, it was mounted on a small trailer frame and had two speakers installed in the front panel. This unusual item closed at $1,500. There are many more great upcoming auctions listed at Chuck Cryderman and Associates’ website, <https://crydermanauctions.com/>

Stereo components, lawn equipment topped Cole event

BY NANCY KELLY

LAPEER, Mich. — If someone was looking for yard equipment, high end stereo components, or firearms all in excellent condition, they could find them at this recent online Cole's Auction Service event. Every item was well maintained and taken care of, and the closing prices reflected the appreciation of the bidders. The prices listed here do not include the buyer's premium.

Rising well above the other items presented, the 2000 John Deere compact tractor was described to be in showroom new condition with only one owner. This 4300 HST Hydro 4-wheel drive diesel with 420 front loader also included a 72-inch mower deck and ballast. With only 400+ hours and everything in fine working order it earned a final bid of $14,400. Another piece of outdoor equipment that proved popular was the 1969 John Deere 140 Patio series tractor. Despite being an older colors in their original boxes closed with a $310 bid.

Moving indoors, an entire category of high-end audio equipment delighted the bidders at this event. A McIntosh MC-2255 power amplifier was offered with the original box and optional wooden case. This incredibly well engineered and innovative amplifier delivers sound from 20 to 20,000 Hz with virtually no distortion. A dream for any audiophile, this treasure in excellent condition was claimed with a high bid of $2,525. Other components in this quality system included a McIntosh C32 stereo preamplifier with a comprehensive range of functions and control options that closed at $1,175, a McIntosh MC-2125 power amplifier for $1,525, and an excellent McIntosh MR80 digital FM tuner that left for $600. For creating audio compositions the Teac A-3440 4 channel reel to reel deck with the RX-9 DBX unit included could easily handle the task. As with the other audio equipment, this 1980s model had only one owner, came with the original boxes, and was in immaculate condition, ready for its next job. It left with a high bid of $625. To experience fine quality playback there was a vintage pair of Bozak CS-4000A Symphony Concert speakers which included the electronic crossover network and pristine wood cabinets. These approximately 45-inch tall speakers were in exceptional condition and were claimed with a high bid of $480. To finish out the audio system, the vintage Technics SR-1700 direct drive turntable provided a great opportunity to enjoy

met Lily Dracula. In 1865, Herman and Lily married. Eventually the couple, along with Lily's father—Grandpa, moved to America, and Herman joined the US Army and fought in World War II. Herman works for Gateman, Goodbury and Graves, a funeral home, where he started out as a "box boy."

Fred Gwynne played Herman as a lovable, good-natured, and clumsy man, who behaves in childish ways, throwing temper tantrums that are more humorous than scary. Herman is kind to everyone he meets, but his naivety about human behavior sets up weekly problems that Herman must get out of.

Herman Munster is incredibly strong, just like the Frankenstein monster in the movies. In one episode, Herman is shown lifting a solid metal demolition ball (an average wrecking ball weighs 5,000 pounds) with one hand like it is a bag of cotton candy. In another episode, Herman is asked how much he weighs, and he answers, "Three spins," meaning the dial on a scale spins around three times when he steps on it (Herman's driver's license lists his weight as 380 pounds). And Herman considers himself, as does his wife, to be quite handsome; although, his face can crack a mirror just by looking in it.

Although nearly every Munster character has its own fan base, by and large, collectors search for Herman Munster items since Herman has always been a beloved television character.

In 1964 Mattel started a Herman Munster collectible fan club when the company came out with a Herman Munster doll that featured Fred Gwynne's voice and spoke ten random phrases with the pull of its "Chatty Ring" cord. This was a spin-off of Mattel's highly successful Chatty Cathy doll, for which the talking mechanism had been invented. This doll is still highly collectible and is occasionally seen on eBay for around $1,000.

Since the first Herman Munster doll, many other dolls and figurines have been produced, including a mid-1960s Herman blow mold toy, a Herman hand puppet that in its original packaging sells for over $1,500, and a Polystone 1/6th scale Herman Munster figurine from Sideshow Collectibles that is routinely offered on Internet auction sites for $650.

There are literally hundreds of items associated with The Munsters and nearly half of them are Herman Munster collectibles. While some old television stars faded into film history, Herman finds new fans and collectors with each new generation, proving that green faced, good-guy monsters have lasting appeal.

Late in life, Fred Gwynne, the actor who played Herman, explained people's fascination with Herman. "I might as well tell you the truth," Gwynne said. "I love old Herman Munster. Much as I try not to, I can't stop liking that fellow."

Above: Herman Munster 1/6th scale figurine by Sideshow Collectibles. This cold cast Polystone Munster is valued at $650.

Above: Vintage, 1964, Herman Munster hand puppet that is still in its original packaging. This puppet was recently offered on eBay for $1,800.

Numerous desirable firearms were offered, including some quality hand guns and rifles. The top gun in this large inventory was the Colt Python .357 revolver with 6-inch barrel in excellent condition. This popular model is valued for its extreme accuracy and light weight. It was taken with a final bid of $1,675. Not far behind, the Kimber Custom Shop Pro CDP (Custom Defense Package) II 45 ACP pistol with Trijicon sights and a custom holster was claimed with a final bid of $1,050. Other impressive hand-guns included a Smith and Wesson .44 Magnum revolver model 29-3 that closed at $650, a Thompson Center Encore pistol .308 Winchester with scope at $550, and a like-new Thompson Center Super-14 Contender .30 cal pistol with Herrett stock and Leupold fixed scope for $400.

Long guns were also well represented at this sale. Leading the pack was the Remington Arms Company 870 Wingmaster 12 gauge pump-action shotgun which featured a vent-rib barrel to improve firing accuracy. This popular model closed with a final bid of $825. Offered as never having been fired, a Winchester 30-30 lever rifle found a new job with a final bid of $775. A handsome Traditions 410 Field Hunter over-under shotgun with walnut stock, a 26-inch barrel, and a 3-inch chamber was eagerly taken with a final bid of $750. Other firearms included a Stoeger Condor, Winchester #250 .22 cal rifle, Remington black Nylon 66 .22 cal rifle, and a Tristar 12-gauge shotgun with Viper synthetic camo. A very sturdy and secure Liberty Franklin H-25 gun safe in excellent condition drew a $1,050 final bid.

General tools and equipment for working around the house were also offered in clean, excellent condition and ready for a new job. The Stihl 046 Magnum chainsaw was an exceptional example. Offered with spare chains, spark plugs, and a case, this workhorse finished with a high bid of $625. Continuing the trend of high-end quality equipment, the Stihl HT131 gas pole pruner with sturdy full body harness went for $410. The Stihl FS350 heavy duty brush cutter/trimmer with spare string head and strap harness finished at $310, a 220 V Iron Man commercial air compressor left for $260, and a heavy duty blue steel frame workbench on casters drew a $300 final bid.

Some very nice household items were also gladly taken. With a stellar reputation, the Speed Queen commercial heavy duty washer and gas dryer set in like new condition drew a final bid of $675. A handsome Ethan Allen armoire with six drawers in excellent condition was rehomed with a final bid of $575. A Precor EFX 5.17 I elliptical machine was ready for a new assignment and was claimed with a bid of $220. A sturdy pair of white chaise lounge chairs complete with outdoor umbrella closed at $210 and a very nice Lane cedar chest with padded top making it perfect for holding blankets at the foot of the bed finished at $170.

A final item that is rarely seen at auction but is appropriate here was the clay pigeon (actually disks) thrower with four cases of pigeons. This handy device is great for practicing shooting a moving target and was taken with a final bid of $130.

Rare Pokemon card finds home with NFL linebacker

NFL linebacker Blake Martinez, recently signed by the Las Vegas Raiders, has been revealed as the owner of one of the most famous and valuable modern trading cards, a Pokémon Illustrator. One of only 41 known examples, it was authenticated recently by experts at CGC Trading Cards (www.CGCcards.com) in Sarasota, Florida.

"In 1997 and 1998, Japanese comics magazine CoroCoro Comic conducted illustration contests for its fans, and winners received one of the specially-printed Illustrator promotion cards depicting a character from the Pokémon franchise," said Matthew Quinn, CGC Trading Cards Vice President.

The Martinez Illustrator promo card is from 1998 and depicts one of the most popular Pokémon characters, Pikachu.

"This is pretty much the holy grail of Pokémon card collecting. It is in gem mint condition, one of the finest known. It is gorgeous, stunning, a 9.5 on the 10-point grading scale and we estimate it would bring $1 million or more in an auction," said Quinn.

Martinez acquired the card in a private transaction in September and submitted it to CGC Trading Cards for authentication and grading.

He described it as the "crème de la crème" of Pokémon cards. "I couldn't have asked for anything better," he said.

Before joining the Raiders this as an inside linebacker, Martinez previously played for the Green Bay Packers and the New York Giants football teams. In addition to being a professional athlete, Martinez is a collector and dealer of trading cards under the name Blake's Breaks.
