Hull began his career that was found in stores across America.

During the 1920s J.J. Hull at The Star Hull experimented with a line of art pottery. The company also used a wider palette of colors and glazing techniques to achieve different looks, which further improved Hull's popularity and profitability. Hull became everyday pottery for every American home.

Addis Hull died in 1930, leaving the pottery to his son, Addis E. Hull, Jr. Hull, Jr. had a short career as general manager of the company his father founded. In 1937, Hull, Jr. left Hull Pottery to become General Manager of the Shawnee Pottery Company. Gerald F. Watts replaced

DOWLING, Mich. — Vehicles seem to do well at auction and such was the case at a recent LLC Real Estate and Auction service inventory reduction auction. The sellers had been collectstorage space was full. Their hope was to transfer some of the pieces to someone else so that they could enjoy them. Prices listed here do not include the buyer's premium. This online auction used a feature called auto-extend where if a bid comes in within 2 minutes of the closing time the bidding is automatically extended on that item. This helps make the experience

Right: Long on durability but short on audio fidelity, this drive in movie car speaker provided a glimpse of an era gone by. It was taken with a final bid of $48.

Spaul-Ding Associates more like a live, in-person auction and discourages last-second sniping.

A Keystone Passport 2300BH Ultra Lite camping for years and had er lead the pack on this determined that their day. It featured a slideout side to increase living which means it has suffispace when parked, a U-shaped dining table, queen bed, bunks, and ample storage space. It had the capacity to sleep six and included a tub and shower. Measuring 26.5 feet long, this attractive camper in very good condition drew a final bid of $10,550.

The sellers offered a 2008 black Jeep Liberty-3.7, with V-6 engine that was trail rated, cient ground clearance under the chassis to drive over logs and rocks on the trail. It displayed 195,882 miles and was clean inside and out. The tires were good, the engine ran well, and there was ample space inside for cargo. This workhorse was ready for a new assignment and drove off with a final bid of $2,451. Hull

Hull, Jr. as Hull's new General Manager.

The late 1930sthrough the 1960s were Hull's Golden Years of pottery production. Hull produced an amazing variety of pottery lines, including Little Red Riding Hood, which is still a favorite with Hull collectors. The Little Red Riding Hood line included the famous cookie jars, canister sets, creamers, and sugar bowls.

Art pottery became one of Hull's most dominant lines. Hull experimented with matte pastel finishes and floral themes, such as Calla Lilly, Orchid, Open Rose, Magnolia, and Tulip. Florist ware became one of Hull's bestselling lines of pottery. From the late 1940s through the 1960s, plants and flower bouquets from local florists often were delivered inside a Hull florist ware pot or figural planter. About this same time, Hull's product lines expanded to include all types of kitchenware, highly collectible liquor bottles, and a cute line of piggy banks.

As the mid-century approached and social taste changed, Hull tried to diversify its pottery lines to keep up with the changing social scene, making Hull Pottery a pottery for the times. New artistic pottery lines emerged, such as Tropicana, Parchment, Tokay, and Ebb Tide. These lines are still important to Hull collectors today.

By the late 1960s, Hull once again saw the socially changing writing on the wall, and tried to change, once again, with the times. The company moved from art pottery and kitchenware to House 'n' Garden pottery dominated by Imperial florist wares.

As the 20th century moved on, foreign competition and union strikes crippled Hull Pottery, and in March 1986 the company closed its doors forever. Hull Pottery produced more than a line of pottery—it produced a legacy of pottery that is still seen in collections across America. One of the most enduring and collected lines of Hull Pottery was its mid-century figural animal planters, which are still affordable for the average collector. Most Hull planters sell in the range of $25-50, and there are dozens of different planters in antique shops and estate sales across America. A few of Hull's animal planters are both rare and expensive, such as Hull's Chinoiserie "Chicken Planter," that was produced in the 1950s and sells for around $200 today.

Hull art pottery also produced many mid-century planters, such as the "Girl in Blue Bonnet" planter, circa 1960, that is highly sought after today since Hull art planters are popular with designers who are seeking a mid-century look. In good condition, this planter sells for around $40. Hull art pottery also produced anthropomorphic planters, such as cute "Cherub" planters in the 1950s and '60s. These pink and white planters routinely sell for around $30.

Above: Mid-century "Turkey" planter by Hull that is valued at $40.

In 1993, the Hull Pottery Association (HPA) was formed to preserve, educate, and promote Hull Pottery, its collectors and its heritage. The Hull Pottery Association strives to solicit new members, conduct regional and national shows, and educate the public on the history and heritage of Hull Pottery. For more information on the Hull Pottery Association, visit the Association's website at www.hullpotteryassociation.org.

45th National Toy Farm Show was a success

Every Wed.

DYERSVILLE, Iowa – The 45th National Farm Toy Show was held in Dyersville, Iowa, early in November. This grand event is deemed one of the largest of its kind. Hobbyists from across the country and several foreign countries gathered in pursuit of "new frontiers" for their collections.

"We were excited to sponsor the 45th annual National Farm Toy Show again this year. The attendance was the largest in recent memory. Two factors contributed to the large crowds. Mother Nature provided a blessing of rain which brought farmers out of the field. In addition, the farm toy hobby is alive and well. And vendors expressed pleasure with the wonderful interest. As a result, the show was a grand success by every measurement," said Cathy Scheibe, owner of Toy Farmer Publications.

The well-known mantra, "If you build it, they will come," was made famous through the movie, "Field of Dreams." The Dyersville, Iowa, community became well known when the movie set was staged north of town. But Toy Farmer Publications may have made the slogan famous 45 years ago, when it launched the National Farm Toy Show.

Manufacturers of farm equipment models are an important facet of the hobby. Companies represented at the National Show included TOMY International, owner of the Ertl brand, SpecCast, Scale Models, and First Gear with its Die-Cast Promotions brand.

Availability of models was challenging during the COVID-19 pandemic. The problem has improved but shipping and labor shortages continue to slow the process. "New models never slowed down in design or in tooling during the COVID pandemic. Shipments were disrupted as ports closed both in the US and China. Fortunately, we've experienced improvement but it's not back to normal," Dave Bell, owner of SpecCast stated.

The national show's display contest attracts great interest resulting from intriguing craftsmanship. There are three divisions, Large Scale Adult, Small Scale Adult, and Youth. The first-place winner of the Large Scale division was Seth Eberhardt of Mediapolis, Iowa. His display featured stages of farm silage. Through his creativity, Eberhardt demonstrated harvesting, storage, and silage feeding.

Another major attraction is the annual National Farm Toy auction. Cornwell Inc. of Aurora, Nebraska has managed the successful auction for 30 years. "Extremely rare toys and collectibles were offered through the 2022 dually pickup truck with extended cab but no box. It was in good condition and had logged 116,609 miles. It was gladly taken with a final bid of $450. For those in the market for a 1971 Thunderbird 429 CI Ford engine with C6 transmission, one was available and drew a high bid of $85.77.

A wide variety of tools were offered, covering several purposes and categories. Leading this area was a set that included an acetylene torch that came with a cutting torch and a cart that was claimed with a high bid of $261. An impressive 20-ton hydrau-

Consignments being accepted for

ON'S UPCOMING FIREARMS AUCTION

We presently are accepting consignments, collections, and Estate accumulations of modern and antique long and handguns of all types. Whether you have one piece, or an entire collection feel free to contact us to discuss including your items in our next sales scheduled for Friday, January 27, 2023. Both sales will be held at the Barry County Fairgrounds, Hastings, Michigan

Our auctions produce interest from buyers all over the United States as well as buyers participating Internationally. This year's recent gun sales held have generated nearly one-half million dollars ($500,000.00) seeing individual pieces selling to full-house crowds who have attended from all over Michigan, as well as adjoining states. Many of the standout examples sold included a New Haven "Henry Patent" 44 lever action rifle brought $30,800; CZ Barrett Model M-107 that sold for nearly $11,000; Winchester King's Improvement Model 73 44-40 rifle $3,740; Winchester King's Improvement with brass studs' decoration $4,400; Colt PTFA revolver with engraved stock $3,300; Heckler & Koch German handgun $2,100, and many others.

In addition to the firearms our auction start with the sale of ammunition, and related articles to the field. There is also a strong market for swords, civil war memorabilia and Indian articles, items of this type and other pieces will be accepted for our firearm auctions, as well as our antique live and online auctions.

Call us to discuss your items and collections in confidence. Reasonable rates, experience, and quick settlement following the auction. Call Ste-few to choose from here. The high earner was a mid-century Murray metal pedal car compete with red steering wheel and stripes along the side. It managed a final bid of $125 despite its well-worn condition. An interesting Super Tot Rod (Murray) chain drive 3-wheeled pedal car with open frame and original red paint finished at $82.77. A spiffy red vehicle labeled AMF Firefighter Unit 509 drew a final bid of $66, while a Corsair pedal car closed at $47, and a battery operated Volkswagen car finished at $45.

There was a limited amount of furniture, but each item was appreciated. The blonde wood, round drop leaf table in clean condition left for a new home with a high bid of $65.04. A maple dresser with four drawers closed at $37.50, a massive china cabinet with three wooden shelves, glass windows on the front, and drawers below finished at $37, and a six-drawer dresser with sturdy metal drawer pulls was claimed with a final bid of $36.

A few old toys were presented, starting with a metal excavator that bore the words "Model Sand Digger". It had a crank on the side and cables to control the movement of the digger. This vintage collectible was taken with a final bid of $41.55. A set of official soap box derby wheels was claimed with a bid of $36. There was a pair of Hubley Kiddie Toy diecast metal planes with wings that fold up. One was red and yellow and marked "Flying Circus", and the other was blue and black with military stars and stripes logos on the wings.

Despite missing parts and chipped paint, the pair still drew a final bid of $30.

There were also many unusual items that aren't often seen. Two cant hooks were set up for consideration. This is a hand tool used to move logs and lumber. These wooden handle implements with metal hooks attached at the end proved popular, drawing a final bid of $60.01. Flashing back to a previous era, some memories were rekindled with the appearance of a drive-in movie car speaker. These compact and durable speakers had very poor audio fidelity but were rugged and served their purpose well when they were attached to the open window of the car to bring in the movie sound. This nostalgic item was taken with a high bid of Often butter churns are made of glass or wood. This auction offered an antique Elgin square can metal butter churn with wooden crank handle and four blades. This blue colored collectible stood about 22 inches tall and was taken with a high bid of $36.

Michigan residents will always have a soft spot for Vernors ginger ale. What better way to honor that tradition than with a Vernors case and four glass bottles. Someone took home a keepsake with a high bid of $13.50.
