Toy trains, trucks move big bids at Braun & Helmer

BY KARIN MILLIMAN

TIPTON, Mich. — A collection of pressed steel toys and HO scale model trains drew bidders to a June Braun & Helmer auction.

Among the auction's most coveted items was a set of four Overland caboose models, a rare find still in their original packaging. The set, which included an Ann Arbor 2834 karma CX TC-27A safety, 2 B & O Chessie system C-27A cars, and an International W-V caboose, was a sight to behold. The teal-colored Chessie system car, with "safety dividends are priceless" emblazoned on the side, was a unique addition. This mint, in the box set, in pristine condition, attracted a high bid price of $800.

Another highlight of the auction was a lot of three meticulously preserved and excellently maintained Overland train cars. This set, which included a Ford 132-ton GE center cab switcher ##1000 karma, a Great Northern X-181 caboose, and a steel car. The grouping sold for $1,100. Selling for $650 was a Precision scale Chesapeake and Ohio railway class J-3 Rd #601 in the original box. This HO scale set was in pristine condition. This engine and car set were basic black and were quickly tucked away for the bid price.

Several train sets sold for the $600 bid. One Challenger Imports set consisted of a Chesapeake and Ohio class J-24 82 and locomotive #544, which also came with the box. This sleek black-painted set of engines was factory-painted in original condition. Selling for the same $600 bid, a lovely set of four cabooses was tucked away. This set consisted of a DT and I model #124 and #125, an Ann Arbor

Perfect weather greets visitors to Allegan Antique Market

BY JACK KELLY

ALLEGAN, Mich. — Although visitors to the monthly Allegan Antique Market probably didn't notice any changes, there was a changing of the guard at this event. Show promoter Larry Wood, 84, of Grand Rapids, Mich., announced that after 45 years he was "enjoying retirement at home" and was "happy to pass along the reins of the organization to the Allegan County Fair."

Brisk temperatures that turned into a warm, breezy day welcomed shoppers to the June 30 show, with many people attracted to the music playing on an old-time phonograph at the booth of 35-year show veteran Lon Mass, Pierce Street Antiques of Muskegon,

Left: Towering nearly 6 feet tall, a cast-iron coffee grinder could be taken home for $900.

Mich. The music came from an all-original 1900s Victor "O" phonograph, complete with 27-inch fancy horn, could entertain at your home for $1,200. Others looked at his 1890 Kalliope music box with 10 bells which could play pretty tunes for you for $2,200.

Collectors of more contemporary sounds tuned into the 8- by 11-inch cranberry red round top 1947 Bakelite Crosley radio which could inform and entertain at your place for $145. The dealer said he purchased the eye-catching countertop

#2840, and an N & W caboose.

A second set of four cabooses brought a slightly higher bid. This set by Overland Models included a Wabash #2771, an Ann Arbor railroad system #2835 and #2846, and a DT and I #124. They were also still sitting in the original box and were in mint condition. They sold for $750.

The Overland Model Company made a set of two bridges, including a Strauss Trunnion Bascule lift bridge in double and single versions. This set was unique because it was #12 out of only 99 made. It brought a high bid price of $700 and included its original box.

A boxed combination of three items consisted of more Overland models. A twenty-five-ton double track sand tower service center, a UP Valley NE one-hundred and fifty-ton coaling tower, and a Camas Prairie Bridge #50 garnered a lot of interest. In mint condition in the original box, the set sold for $900.

The top prize in the toy train collection was a Cheyenne Industries Signature series #1 Overland model. Cisco 810' bridge, boxes #1 and #2, were included. This set was OMI #3370 on the HO scale. It was one of 35 bridges produced in the fall of 2000. The hammer didn't come down on this sweet package until it reached a respectful price of $2000.

Above: The blue cab on this Champion steel toy made the white trailer pop. It took $600 to tuck this beauty away.

Ace certainly "set the pace" in the steel truck category. A red Ace Store truck set the curve high when it was sold. This one came with an extra trailer that hooked to the original truck. It was in great condition, and the bright red paint job really made this toy pop. It took a high bid of $600.

A Ford Champion truck with "Rockingham, N.C." emblazoned on the door was offered.

This toy, with the blue cab and white box trailer, had Ford marked all over it. It was a self-proclaimed champion, and it proved it since it took a high bid of $600 to be the final bidder.

A white steel truck rolled in with some interest. Showing "smart women use Bruce," this was a replica delivery truck of floor care cleaning products. The one plaid band that ran along the bottom of the trailer stood out against the gleaming white of the rest of the toy. This mint condition toy brought a high bid price of $450.

A Morrell steel truck stood out in the group with its brilliant yellow cab and gray box trailer. It sported a pig standing upright, dressed in a tuxedo, top hat, and cane. He looked like he was enjoying his stroll with a broad smile. This meat truck brought a high bid price of $300. The only large offering in this auction was a pontoon boat. This 2000 Manitou pontoon boat had a forty-horsepower outboard motor. It was 24 feet long and came with a cover and a canopy. It was in the water during the summer of 2023. It sold for $3,000.

Bakelite radio for just a dollar at a barn sale.

Those with a taste for cast-iron primitive items were drawn to two booths at the June Market. Terry Juhnke of Muskegon, Mich., pointed to his early cast iron 24-inch-long double lid scuffle bucket, made to collect ashes from early homes, priced at $350. The 25-year show veteran also showed a selection of vintage advertising signs priced from $40 to $300 each.

A cast-iron wheel coffee grinder that measured nearly 6 feet tall weighted in at several hundred pounds according dealer

Mel Stoker of nearby Dorr, Mich., who priced the oddity at $900. The dealer said the contraption drew lots of attention, with some taking pictures standing next to it.

Not all collectibles are large. Coin collectors hovered around the booth of Dave Kleinbrink of Alamo, Mich., for a closer look at hundreds of coins priced from $3 to $1,300. Of special interest was a mint 1885 Carson City Morgan silver dollar offered for $1,300.

Allegan is known for offering a broad selection of traditional antique furniture, but those with contemporary tastes were drawn to the booth of 30-year Allegan vendor

Above: Coin collectors with deep pockets hovered around a mint 1885 Carson City silver dollar tagged at $1,300.

David Price, Blue Door Studios, Grand Rapids, Mich. The "object of desire" was a Herman Miller rocking chair, described as "1959 original mint," that could relax you at your home for $975. Movie poster collectors "oohed and aahed" over his 22-by 28-inch half sheet The Mummy movie poster, also dated 1959 priced at $700.

Militaria collectors hovered around the varied offerings of Ed Danaher of Jones, Mich. Proudly hanging on his booth back wall were three Imperial World War I German swords, with sheaths priced from $300 to $600 each. Jones said he had a "serious interest" in all military items but is most drawn to World War II-era collectibles.

Although former show promoter Wood did not attend the show, he spoke from home and said he hoped to attend a future event to visit with many dealer friends made over the years, noting that his children Kellie, Terri and Shawn will continue to work with the new promoters during the transition, adding "the show is now in good hands with the new owners which I know and trust."

Allegan County Fair President Rick Day has been a regular visitor to the antique show and is now being assisted by the fair executive director, Saree Miller, working from the fairgrounds offices on the facility grounds. Day said there will be no immediate changes for the monthly event, which runs the last Sunday of the month, May through September.

Patriotism runs high with sheet music from World War I

BY DONALD-BRIAN JOHNSON

“Over there, over there, Send the word, send the word, over there!”

That the Yanks are coming, the Yanks are coming,

The drums rum-tum-ming everywhere!”

George M. Cohan, 1917

On July 28, 1914, World War I was officially underway.

But it wasn't until April 6, 1917, that the Yanks finally were coming. That's when Congress officially approved President Woodrow Wilson's declaration of war on the German Empire. Until then, the United States had remained steadfastly neutral. Then, in response to increasing provocation by Germany — the sinking of the Lusitania (and the resulting loss of American lives); the fear that Germany was recruiting the support of Mexico, in exchange for the eventual repatriation of Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona — America said “enough.”

That decision of 100-plus years ago resulted in an outpouring of patriotic expression not seen since the Civil War. Now, however, the United States was no longer rocked by internal dissension, but joined together in facing an external enemy. Defeating that enemy called not only for military might, but also for a unified effort on the home front. Carrying the banner for that home front effort: American popular music.

Prior to the war, popular song themes followed predictable routes: heart-tugging love ballads, paeans to bygone days and lands, and comic turns. America's entry into the war changed all that. New themes emerged, with themes of the past adapted to suit the needs of the present. And, while patriotism was paramount, music publishing remained just as lucrative as before. A song about a soldier bidding his sweetheart a fond farewell could sell just as many copies as a song about a prewar couple in the same situation.

Major categories for the songs of World War I included:

Recruiting songs, such as “If I Had A Son For Each Star in Old Glory, (Uncle Sam, I'd Give Them All To You).”

Peppy morale boosters, including “Liberty Bell, It's Time To Ring Again.” (“Though you're old and there's a crack in you, don't forget Old Glory's backin' you!”)

Romanticized looks at military life: “The Rose of No Man's Land” (“mid the war's great curse stands the Red Cross nurse—she's the rose of no man's land!”)

Visions of life after wartime: “When I Come Back To You (We'll Have A Yankee-Doodle Wedding).”

Weepers, including “Hello Central, Give Me No Man's Land.” (“I want to know why my mamma starts to weep, when I say ‘now I lay me down to sleep.’”)

Comic novelties. Among the favorites: “Would You Rather Be a Colonel with an Eagle on Your Shoulder or a Private with a Chicken On Your Knee?" and "If He Can Fight Like He Can Love, Good Night, Germany!"

Almost every denizen of Tin Pan Alley churned out suited-to-the-occasion songs during the war years, but two composers stood head and shoulders above the rest: George M. Cohan and Irving Berlin. Their names (and their songs) continue to resonate, over a century after their initial impact.

George M. Cohan liked to say he was "born on the 4th of July." (Actually, it was July 3, 1878, but why quibble?) From the early 1900s onward, Cohan took the country by storm, with a series of stage hits featuring such musical rousers as "Give My Regards To Broadway" and "You're A Grand Old Flag." However, it took just one song — 1917's "Over There" — to win Cohan an enduring spot in the popular culture of World War I. It energet-reissue, the cover illustrations varying from patriotic scenes, to depictions of the song's latest star interpreters.

Morale-building paid off: Cohan's wartime contribution was recognized with a Congressional Gold Medal in 1936. In 1959, a bronze statue of George M. Cohan was placed at the heart of New York's Times Square, where he now "gives his regards to Broadway" in perpetuity.

At the outset of World War I, Irving Berlin kept America's toes patriotically tapping with such best-sellers as "They Were All Out Of Step But Jim," and "The Ragtime Soldier Man." Berlin's major contribution, however, came after his enlistment ("Army Takes Berlin!"). Stationed at Camp Upton in Yaphank, N.Y., he was given an assignment right up his (tin pan) alley: creating a stage production as a camp fund-raiser.

Like most revues of the time, "Yip Yip Yaphank" grabbag. There were acrobats, jugglers, military drills, and even a boxing demonstration by lightweight champion Benny Leonard. Tying it all together: an all-new Berlin score. Its most unique aspect was the cast. All were Army recruits (even the towering "Ziegfeld Girls"). Among those recruits: Sgt. Irving Berlin himself, bringing down the house as he plaintively wailed "Oh! How I Hate To Get Up In The Morning."

"Yip Yip Yaphank" concluded with "We're On Our Way To France," as the soldier/performers marched up the theatre aisles, and returned to their barracks. The final Broadway performance on September 14, 1918, however, had a different ending. This time, as the military cast (led by Sgt. Berlin) exited singing "We're On Our Way to France," they actually were. Their march took them to the troop carrier destined to transport them overseas. For his contributions, Berlin was also awarded the Congressional Gold Medal.

Even 100 years-plus since the pages were hot off the presses, World War I sheet music remains surprisingly accessible. Literally millions of copies were printed — and, when no longer current, instead of being discarded, the music was simply stacked up and forgotten. Since sheet music of the early 20th century was generally larger than that of today (about 13 1/2 inches long by 10 3/4 inches wide), the increased size, on paper of limited stamina, often led to creases and dog-ears. Fortunately, many copies were carefully kept in piano benches or music cabinets, and remain in relatively pristine condition. Safe from sunlight, moisture, and frequent handling, their colors remain vibrant, even a century on.

For today's collectors, World War I sheet music is an attractive collectible, whether to play or to frame. The artwork is generally superb, done by such top illustrators as Americana favorite Norman Rockwell, and perennial Irving Berlin illustrator, Albert Barbelle. Some collectors may want the work of a specific composer (Berlin or Cohan, for instance). Others may wish to collect as many cover variations of a specific song as possible (finding all the iterations of "Over Here" will keep you busy). The price is certainly right: lots of 10 or so assorted pieces in acceptable condition often show up on eBay for a "buy-it-now" price of under $30; mint copies by a specific composer or artist are in the $25-50 range.

World War I marked a tipping point in American history. The country definitively moved away from the horse-and-buggy days of the late 1800s, and charged full speed ahead into the 20th century. Popular song was there, doing its bit for victory, helping define an era. Sheet music, its tuneful souvenir, provides a colorful, ongoing reminder of this proud heritage.
