1957 Tonka truck and trailer set pulled $1,550 bid

BY NANCY KELLY

SHIPSHEWANA, Ind. — Chupp Auctions recently hosted a very colorful event offering pressed steel toys, pedal cars, pedal tractors, farm toys, and other related temptations. It was well received by the bidders who drove the prices up to collector values. There were 357 lots in this online event, ranging from modern to vintage models. Prices here do not include the buyer's premium.

The leading piece was the 1957 Tonka B-206 trailer sales set. This multi-piece collection featured a blue pickup truck, horse trailer with 2 horses, a boat with trailer, and a utility trailer that were all intended to be hitched to this truck. A second orange truck read "Sportsman" on the side, had a cargo box mounted on the bed, and carried a rowboat on top. It also had a box trailer hitched to it. The original cardboard box was included. It was in poor condition, but the items were fine. This fun set was taken home with a final bid of $1,550.

A couple of Smith Miller tanker trucks stepped up as the next popular category. First, the massive 37-inch-long Mohawk Mack gasoline tanker red semi-truck was offered with its padded boxes. The door (which opens) wore the logo "Smith Miller Smitty Toys, California", and "Famous Trucks in Miniature". Other impressive details included a Mack the bulldog hood ornament, the detachable polished silver finish tank, and the accurately depicted stacks. This handsome model was captured with a final bid of $1,200. The next Smith Miller tanker was the orange and blue Union Oil delivery truck. It measured 35 inches long and included several accurate details such as two side panels with retractable hoses, a Minute Man Service drawing on the tank, and a Union 76 logo on the door. Also sold with its padded box, it left with a final bid of $950. For something completely different, the Smith Miller log hauling truck also did well. The door read "Smith Miller Mackinac Escanaba Michigan Logging Works" and the trailer was carrying five lengthy wood logs. It finished with a high bid of $850.

There were some very realistic implements

SHOW NEWS

Dealers and shoppers flock to Davisburg for show

BY KARIN MILLIMAN

DAVISBURG, Mich. — Michigan Antiques Festivals held its last show of the 2024 season at the Springfield Oaks County Park on Oct 11-12.

The vendors were set up with their unique finds and homemade creations on display, and the shoppers started pouring in. This show just seems to get larger every time it comes around, so pulling a wagon or pushing a cart to help get items back to your vehicle is a good idea. There are benches scattered around, and the shoppers welcome these resting places. Whether shopping to find a piece of history, looking for a souvenir t-shirt, checking out the crafts on display, or even walking through the row of car parts, this park becomes an absolute treasure trove of unique finds. And don't forget the beautiful classic cars on display or the many food vendors.

Vendor Gary Velazquez, owns and operates Farmbrook Antiques and specializes in furniture restoration from the 1850s to the 1920s. His booth was crowded with shoppers, and many of his pieces had sold signs on them. "The first time I took furniture to a show, I looked around at the other vendors and realized I needed something extra special to make sales. So I started learning to restore the vintage pieces." He had a Larkin secretary made in Buffalo, New York, a restored piece from the early 1900s. This very usable piece of furniture was priced at $1,195.

Velazquez also had a 6 foot Robbins table. If all the extended table leaves were utilized, it could be made an impressive 10 feet. This one was priced at $2,195. The Robbins Furniture Company, established in 1873, was based in Owosso, Michigan. It only manufactured dining extension offered with the model tractors. The Scale Models brand 1/8 scale Farmall 806 tractor came with a George Pippenger New Idea 2-row picker. A 1/8 scale model tractor is approximately 16 inches long, so this is a very large scale series. The set was reported to be in excellent condition and drew a final bid of $800. Another 1/8 scale George Pippenger pull type New Idea 2-row corn picker sold by itself for a $550 bid.

Moving on to the pedal cars, there were 17 attractive options to choose from. It was the pedal tractors that lead the pack. First up was the brilliant green John Deere LA custom pedal tractor with rubber tires, original vintage style metal seat, and John Deere decals intact. Measuring approximately 30 inches long by 20 inches high, this toy left for new adventures with a high bid of $1,200. Three orange pedal tractors produced by Eska included one IH McCormick Farmall and two Allis Chalmers (models CA and C) that went for $900 each. In addition to the tractors, there were some vintage Murray pedal cars that were restored and looked great. The Murray Ranch Wagon pedal car in burnt orange with rear compartment for cargo or a passenger and ball bearing drive collected a $450 high bid, as did the forest green Country Squire pedal car.

The variety and quality of these auction items were impressive, and it is difficult to select just a few items to feature. For example, there were four custom made scenes consisting of model horses, harnesses, and equipment. A team of two Breyer model horse Belgians wearing intricate draft harnesses and pulling a handsome Stenson box wagon was a stunning example of workmanship. The entire set up measured 27 inches long and had signs that read “Zumbrotta Auction Market”. It was claimed with a final bid of $800. The custom plow hitched to three Breyer horses left with a final bid of $250, and the custom horse-drawn manure spreader and the custom hay mower with their teams of harnessed horses each cleared final bids of $200.

Interspersed with the newer items there were also vintage toys and models for consideration. The highest selling was the Keystone pressed steel air mail plane. It measured 25 inches long, and except for some paint loss it was in good condition. This collectible plane had a mechanism underneath which caused the propeller to rotate via a gear connected to a shaft when the wheels were turned. This nostalgic toy was claimed with a final bid of $500.

A Louis Marx and

This familiar green John Deere LA custom pedal tractor left for new adventures with a high bid of $1,200.

Above: An elaborately designed friction operated T. N. Showa Japanese tin aircraft carrier went to a new collector for a $350 high bid.

Company Siren Sparkling Airplane Pistol was produced approximately in the 1940s and featured a loud chrome-plated siren on the left side, plus it emitted sparks by grinding a replaceable metal cartridge against an emery wheel. In addition, this 7-inch-long red painted pressed steel gun had removable airplane wings, making it an even more desirable piece. The pistol was in excellent condition, and it sold with its original box showing vintage graphics for a $450 bid. An elaborately designed T. N. Showa Japanese tin aircraft carrier complete with planes, Navy helicopters, and radar was friction operated by sliding it along on the three wheels. Along with the battered box, it went to a new collector for a $350 high bid. All three of these vintage toys sold well above their pre-auction estimated values.

Finally, a vintage figure with a tag stating “Lone Ranger Official Doll” standing 26 inches tall was offered along with a copyright 1951 hard cover book titled The Lone Ranger’s New Deputy. The composition doll wore chaps, a felt cowboy hat, plaid shirt, and a belt with holster. The set cleared a final bid of $350.

Upcoming Chupp auctions can be viewed at www.auctionzip.com Auctioneer #40698 or in the Auction Exchange.

tables and chairs and remained in business for 128 years. These pieces were well made and are still proudly used in homes for special meals shared with family and friends.

But the eye-catching piece in Vendor Velazquez' booth was a table from the Cincinnati Art-carved piece from the 1890s. This table was an impressive 12 feet in length. It had been very lovingly restored and was perfect in every way. It was priced at $15,000 and was breathtaking with all the fantastic carving. The underside attracted as much attention as the top as the shoppers stopped to admire this rare work of art. The fancy carved feet supported a brace covered in gorgeous carved ferns intertwined around each other. The quarter-sawn tabletop reflected the sunlight that danced across in waves.

Looking for something unique became a pleasant pastime as all the vendors offered different items. However, Edison Pipe Lights seemed to be the winner in the exceptional category. The couple who operate Edison Pipe Lights were tucked away in a corner booth, but this tiny booth was always full of shoppers fascinated with what they could see from the walkway. They made and sold lights for your home with a vintage industrial look. A Trerice pressure gauge light was plugged in and glowing. hey all had dimmer switches on them so the mood could be set. One light bulb would run as long as 4,000 hours. "I never make two the same, and they all have touch switches," said the owner. Some of them even came with remote control switches, but they looked anything but modern. The old Edison-looking light bulbs added to the vintage look. They were reasonably priced at around $330, with each piece having something unique that made the argument for the price.

A wild ox and wild cattle mount were offered for $600 each. These two mounts were standing back to back, each looking in its own direction and attracting a lot of attention. Even though they were in the back of the booth, people walked back to get a look at these creatures. "Someone paid a lot of money to go hunting for these two trophies," said the vendor.

He had some signs that drew a lot of attention. The shell-shaped Shell sign he had leaning against his trailer was priced at $4,800, and the Richfield, "The Gasoline of Power" sign was priced at $3,500. He also had a large Ratfink, which attracted attention from shoppers who didn't even know who Ratfink was. He was priced at $350 and stood out on the table of signs with his brilliant green paint job.

Old typewriters have become highly collectible for their role in history. Many companies made them, and they were used in homes and businesses. A company that specialized in Columbia tricycles and bicycles even got into the typewriter manufacturing business. Haig's of Rochester was vending at this show and had an impressive setup just inside the doors of the Ellis Barn. "This one was made to be used with just your index finger, and it's from 1892," said the vendor. "It was made long before people learned how to type, so was made to be used that way," she said. It was very compact and came in its own wooden carrying case. This World Typewriter was patented on October 12, 1886, by Above: Still sitting in the original carrying case, this typewriter from 1892 was meant to be used with the "hunt and peck" method.

Pope Manufacturing Company. This was the Model 2, which allowed for both capital and small letters. The price tag on this unique piece of history was $700.

Next year's dates for the Michigan Antique Festivals are May 3 -4 and October 11-12 at the Springfield Oaks County Park in Davisburg, Michigan. The dates for the Midland County Fairgrounds shows in Midland, Michigan, are May 31-June 1 and September 27-28.

Old Florida souvenirs offer sun-kissed memories

BY WILLIAM FLOOD

Ever since Henry Flagler laid railroad tracks and built hotels along Florida's east coast, the southernmost state has captured the hearts of travelers. The influx of tourists fueled a thriving industry of Florida keepsakes. Travelers delighted in purchasing souvenirs from roadside attractions — like alligator farms, quirky gift shops, and roadside motels — each piece representing a fond memory of their journey. Today, collectors seek out vintage Florida souvenirs, captivated by their nostalgic ties to the state's golden age of travel.

Before Flagler's grand ambitions, Florida was regarded as a bug-infested swamp where only the hardiest would set foot. That changed with the opening in 1888 of Flagler's opulent Ponce de Leon Hotel, in St. Augustine, which put Florida on the map for wealthy travelers. That magnificent hotel was followed by others that sprung up in burgeoning cities like Miami and St. Petersburg. As they opened their doors, railroads and cruise ships began bringing enthusiastic travelers, creating the foundation for Florida's tourism industry.

After 1900, tourism in Florida thrived with the advent of the automobile and the expansion of roads, railways, and even early air travel made Florida destinations more accessible. Iconic attractions like the Bok Tower and Daytona Boardwalk opened to excited visitors in the 1920s. The 1930s saw even more tourist draws, including Cypress Gardens, with its famed water-skiing shows, Jungle Gardens, and Silver Springs. During this time, Miami Beach emerged as a premier destination, marked by the construction of luxurious Art Deco hotels, the opening of the famed Ocean Drive, and the influx of celebrities and socialites drawn to Miami's vibrant nightlife and beautiful sandy beaches.

As the automobile became more widespread in the mid-20th century, Florida experienced a boom in tourist attractions that catered to road-tripping families. Popular destinations including Gatorland and Weeki Wachee Springs, known for its mermaid shows, opened their doors in the 1940s. The first true theme park — Busch Gardens Tampa Bay — opened in 1959, followed by Kennedy Space Center in 1967. To accommodate the growing number of tourists, hunattracted a surge of visitors that bolstered the economies of local towns and spawned the development of nearby resorts and entertainment options including other parks like SeaWorld in 1973.

Florida Souvenirs

All those roadside attractions, theme parks, glorious beaches, and natural wonders proved irresistible, making the Sunshine State the preferred destination for many families. For decades, the familiar refrain of "Are we there yet?" echoed from back seats, embodying the anticipation of a Florida adventure.

Souvenirs offered visitors a tangible way to capture those adventures. Tourists were delighted by quirky items like rubber alligators that highlighted the state's unique wildlife, kitschy seashell crafts, and postcards that captured images of their destinations. These keepsakes offered families a way to bring home a piece of their holiday and conjure memories long after their trip ended.

Today, collectors are captivated by vintage Florida souvenirs because of their charm and the nostalgic connection to Florida's halcyon years. In our current era dominated by technology, artifacts like old roadside attraction brochures, motel memorabilia — and even those rubber alligators — are tangible connections to a simpler time.

Florida's collectibles encompass a vibrant array of mementos that came from the state's rich tourism heritage. From beach-themed decor to items branded with hotel and restaurant logos, and even quirky souvenirs from roadside attractions, collectors can explore an endless variety of treasures. Here are several categories worth exploring:

Advertising and Signage: Old advertisements and signs from Florida businesses, attractions, and tourist destinations serve as nostalgic reminders of the state's vibrant commercial history and its unique appeal to visitors.

Hotel and Motel Memorabilia: Items like ashtrays, keychains, and matchbooks from old motels capture the essence of Florida's lodging industry era and often capture memories of vacations spent in the state.

Maps and Travel Guides: literature that portrays the early days of auto travel in the state offers insights into how the state has evolved as a travel destination over the years.

Photographs: Old prints and slides of Florida's attractions and locations serve as visual time capsules, serving as a visual record of what has been lost to time.

Postcards: Vintage postcards featuring Florida attractions and landmarks not only capture the state's iconic sights, they also provide a glimpse into the past through their imagery and the visitors' stories written on the back.

Restaurant Menus: Menus from iconic Florida restaurants showcase past dining experiences and costs and honor restaurants that have been lost to time.

Theme Park Memorabilia: Vintage mementos from early theme parks, including buttons, guidebooks, and t-shirts, celebrate Florida's iconic amusement parks and the joy they brought to countless visitors.

Tourist Souvenirs: Items like shot glasses, keychains, and magnets with Florida themes were always popular collectibles that allowed tourists to take home a piece of their travel experience. Favored among collectors are souvenirs that represent establishments lost to time.

Transportation Memorabilia: Collectibles related to airlines, cruise ships, and railways that served Florida reflect the evolution of travel in the state.

Popular items include promotional brochures, luggage tags, tickets, and timetables.

The cost of vintage Florida souvenirs varies widely, reflecting the broad array of available merchandise. For instance, common finds like keychains or postcards featuring Florida attractions can be acquired for as little as $1 to $3. In contrast, more unique items, like authentic restaurant ware will typically range from $25 to $75, depending on the rarity and condition. Serious collectors might pay $200 or more for handmade Miccosukee or Seminole tribe collectibles or limited-edition art prints from famous Florida attractions. The diversity allows collectors to pursue unique avenues and engage at their own pace and budget.

Collecting old Florida souvenirs is a charming pursuit that intertwines nostalgia, history, and personal connection. These collectibles help preserve the legacy of forgotten landmarks and help capture the evolution of today's favorite attractions.
