ACROSS THE AUCTION BLOCK

Classic vehicles revved up Miedema's Repocast sale

BY WILLIAM FLOOD

BRYON CENTER Mich. — Miedema's Repocast brought a lively mix of classics to auction on August 26, with 16 collector cars, sports cars, and trucks offered from locations across Michigan. The lineup ranged from antiques to late-model classics, giving collectors a broad selection to pursue.

The auction's high of $26,250 went to a stately 2014 Bentley Flying Spur four-door sedan, with 104,986 miles. The sedan was powered by a 12-cylinder twin-turbo engine with an automatic transmission and all-wheel drive. It featured wood interior trim, heated and cooled leather front seats, power rear seats, rear power window screens, a touchscreen, and navigation. The auctioneer noted some exterior scratching, a level-fault dash message, and a cracked windshield.

The second-highest result was a 2020 Chevrolet Camaro convertible with 78,638 miles that brought $20,100. The rear-wheel drive muscle car had a 3.6-liter 6-cylinder engine paired with an automatic transmission. The good-condition model had options like keyless remote entry, push-button start, leather interior, power sunroof, touchscreen entertainment system, backup camera, OnStar, and aftermarket wheels.

Three other Camaros appeared in the lineup. A 2002 T-top with just 24,644 miles, which hit $16,800. The clean 35th Anniversary Edition sported a 5.0-liter 8-cylinder and automatic transmission, along with removable glass T-tops, leather interior, aftermarket headers, and a Y-pipe exhaust. A 2012 coupe with 76,049 miles hammered at $9,650. Under the hood was a 3.6-liter 6-cylinder engine, paired with a 6-speed manual transmission. It was nicely appointed with A/C, power windows, power locks, tilt steering, OnStar, and aftermarket wheels. Minor scratches were noted. Rounding out the trio was a

Black Sox scandal still intrigues baseball collectors

Repocast

2001 Z28 convertible with 88,593 miles that hit $7,905. It offered a 5.7-liter 8-cylinder engine and automatic transmission. Options included a power convertible top, power windows, power locks, and American Racing wheels. Minor scratches were similarly noted.

Also from the General Motors camp, hammering at $8,400, was a vintage 1946 Chevrolet regular cab pickup truck. The non-running project vehicle, with unlisted miles, had a 350-cubic-inch V8 and automatic transmission. It showed the beginnings of a custom exterior, including a Texaco emblem, and aftermarket wheels, with 275/40ZR front and 275/35ZR20 rear tires. It also came with several newer, uninstalled parts.

On the Ford front came a 2004 Mustang GT Deluxe coupe with a mere 4,529 miles that changed hands at $16,000. It was powered by a 4.6-liter 8-cylinder engine with a 5-speed manual transmission. Amenities included leather interior and standard accouterments like power windows, power locks, tilt steering, and cruise control. Exterior customizations included blue-on-white flame paint, a Cobra front bumper, scooped hood, Cobra R spoiler, and custom "Lamborghini"-style door hinges. While running and drivable, its "check engine" light was on.

Another Mustang, this one a 1994 Mustang GT convertible with 79,560 miles, went for $5,150. Under its hood was a 5.0-liter 8-cylinder engine matched with automatic transmission. The car had a power convertible top, leather interior, Mach 460 sound system, and alloy wheels. The auctioneer noted the A/C needed to be recharged, it required a jump-start, had a slight shake at idle, and showed scattered dings and scratches.

Then came a Detroit icon - a 1963 Ford Thunderbird Landau coupe with 23,644 miles, drawing $3,000. It had an 8-cylinder engine and automatic transmission. The five-passenger interior included leather and cloth upholstery, powered front seats, power windows, and an AM/FM stereo. The interior had evident wear, tears, and staining, while the exterior showed scattered scratches, dents, rust, and a chipped windshield.

Other American iron included a 2019 Dodge Challenger R/T coupe with 95,807 miles. Rolling off for a tidy $10,852, it offered a 5.7-liter 8-cylinder engine and automatic transmission, plus equipment like power windows, power locks, power mirrors, cruise control, a tinted windshield, and an AM/FM stereo with Bluetooth. The "check engine" and "service fuel sensor" warning lights were on, and both the interior and exterior showed some condition issues.

Bidding reached $8,550 on another Dodge, a circa-1954 M37B1 4x4 regular-cab pickup with 11,312 miles showing on its five-digit odometer. Its flathead inline-six engine was paired with a 4-speed manual transmission. Adding to its vintage character was a windshield that swung outward from the bottom for ventilation. The truck also had a heavy-duty Braden winch mounted to the front bumper, although it was not connected to the PTO. The windshield also had some chips.

Aside from the high-selling Bentley, other imports in the lineup included a 1988 Mercedes-Benz 420 SEL four-door sedan with 124,533 miles. It featured a 4.2-liter 8-cylinder gasoline engine, automatic transmission, and rear-wheel drive. Amenities included leather upholstery, heated and powered front seats, moonroof, power telescoping steering wheel, and power rear window shade, along with an aftermarket AM/FM stereo and CD player. Selling for $7,550, the sedan came with extras like its original window sticker and owner's pamphlets, but suffered from age-related dings, scratches, and rust spots.

Coming in just behind at $7,425 was a 1986 Toyota MR2 with 123,165 miles. The rear-wheel-drive sport coupe had a 1.6-liter 4-cylinder engine and automatic transmission. Its interior was described as clean and in good condition, while the exterior showed only minor scattered stone chips and scratches. From this sporty import to American muscle, the lineup showed just how much variety this small auction had to offer.

Black Sox

is the 1919 Scandal and members of the White Sox, including Shoeless Joe Jackson, admitting that they took money to throw the World Series. That was indeed a “black” day for baseball.

Still, some historians say the name Black Sox was given to the White Sox years earlier because of the team’s reputation for wearing dirty uniforms on the field on game day. Apparently, owner Charles Comiskey had given orders to cut down on the cleaning bills, so his team “ran out on the field in the filthiest uniforms the fans had ever seen.”

The result of the Black Sox Scandal was that in 1921 eight members of the White Sox team stood trial for “conspiracy to defraud the public.” The eight baseball players were Shoeless Joe Jackson, Eddie Cicotte, Claude “Lefty” Williams, Arnold “Chick” Gandil, Charles “Swede” Risberg, George “Buck” Weaver, Oscar “Happy” Felsch, and Fred McMullin. All eight were acquitted at trial, but Major League Baseball

Commissioner Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis banned all eight of the players from organized baseball for life.

In Field of Dreams, Ray Kinsella, when speaking of Shoeless Joe being banned from baseball says, “years later, there were rumors about him playing baseball in local leagues under a false name. He’d put on 50 pounds, but he could still hit.” In fact, Shoeless Joe has the third highest career batting average in all of the major leagues. He was banned with a .356 lifetime batting average after hitting .370 for four consecutive years.

Speaking of Shoeless Joe, in an interview published in the October 1949 edition of Sport magazine, Jackson said he received his nickname during a mill game played in Greenville, South Carolina. During the game, Jackson raised blisters on his foot from a new pair of cleats. The blisters hurt, so Jackson took his shoes off before he was at bat. As play continued, a heckling fan noticed Jackson running to third base in his socks and shouted, “You shoeless son of a gun, you!” and the resulting nickname “Shoeless Joe” stuck for

Today, baseball fans and collectors are still fascinated with the Black Sox Scandal. Their fascination especially extends to Shoeless Joe Jackson, one of baseball’s greatest players, and his lifetime ban.

Old Sports Cards has this to say about Shoeless Joe Jackson baseball cards. “There weren’t many different varieties of Jackson cards produced during his playing days. Since his first full season wasn’t until 1911, he wasn’t included in many of the iconic tobacco sets of previous years. And because he was banned from the game after the 1920 season, he was excluded from the extremely popular American Caramel set and others of the 1920s. So, his relatively small window of playing time meant fewer Jackson cards to collect. And that can make owning any of his cards in any condition quite the challenge since you won’t find them cheap.”

Sports Card Investigator states Shoeless Joe’s baseball cards are available in at least 22 sets.

The record-setting Shoeless Joe Jackson baseball card was a 1910 T210 Old Mill Cigarettes Series 8 Joe Jackson card with an SGC 3 grade that sold for Above: “Shoeless Joe Jackson Comes to Iowa” by W.P. Kinsella. A copy of this book may be found on the Internet for about $7.

$687,500 on April 4, 2026. The prior record for an Old Mill Joe Jackson card like this was a PSA 3.5 that sold for $600,000 back in February 2019.

Shoeless Joe Jackson autographs are rare and one of the most valuable in all of sports. Joe’s basic signature, on a loose piece of paper, is typically worth from $50,000 to $100,000, and his signature on a baseball sells for $50,000 to $240,000.

Baseball collectors who enjoy reading look for several “must have” books, covering the Black Sox Scandal, including “Eight Men Out” by Eliot Asinof, “The Betrayal” by Charles Fountain, and “Shoeless Joe Jackson Comes to Iowa” by W. P. Kinsella. This last book inspired the movie Field of Dreams with Kevin Costner.

For some collectors, the magic of moonlight shines year around. In 2001, a collector purchased “Black Betsy” at auction, the primary baseball bat of Shoeless Joe Jackson that he used during the Black Sox Scandal of 1919. The bat was hand made by a fan of Jackson’s in 1903 when Shoeless Joe was just 15 years old. Magic doesn’t always come cheap, however, and Black Betsy sold for a homerun price of $577,610, making it the second most expensive baseball bat collectible in history.
