1917 motorcycle converted to ice boat slid to $13,000

BY KARIN MILLIMAN

DORR, Mich. — Doug Halloran had a lifelong passion for collecting rare and unique items. Recently, Vander Kolk Auction & Appraisal Company had the honor of selling some of the most interesting items that Halloran collected.

One unusual item was a 1917 Henderson motorcycle that had been made into an ice boat. It had been rebuilt as an ice boat in 1932. Halloran bought this unusual piece more than 40 years ago. It came with no title, but that didn't deter the bidders. It was definitely a unique project for the new owner, but he had to dig deep in his pocket to take it home. It had a front and back seat and was chain-driven. Small skis would have been mounted on it so it could glide along the ice with little resistance. It even came with black-and-white photos of both seats occupied. A small windshield helped ward off cold air blowing directly on the driver. This unique piece of history and imagination went home with a new owner for a high bid of $13,000.

Another unique piece came in at just under half the bid price of the top-selling item. A vintage Cushman Sharknose Golfster golf cart was completely restored, and it was beautiful. These were put on the market from 1954 to 1967. It had a gasoline engine and didn't come with a title, but this was a sweet ride that would attract attention wherever it took you. Looking at it from the front, it did indeed appear as a shark heading right at you. This one was gorgeous in teal and white. One wheel in front and two in back would provide a smooth ride. The chrome finishes of the lights, wheels, and front bumper frame really popped against the teal color. It was a two-seater with room on the back to hold golf club bags. It brought a final bid of $6,500.

A four-wheeled vehicle was a 1923 Ford Model T depot hack, which did come with a title. This beauty came with an ooga horn you had to reach out and squeeze by hand. This vehicle had originally been used to transport passengers from bus and train stations. It had no doors, and passengers often stored luggage along the out-

Banned books can make an interesting collection

BY LARRY LEMASTERS

Banned Books Week is October 4-10. Organized by the American Library Association, Banned Books Week is an annual awareness campaign, highlighting the celebration of the freedom to read what we choose to read.

In 2025, according to the American Library Association, the 11 most challenged books in American libraries were "Sold" by Patricia McCormick, "The Perks of Being a Wallflower" by Stephen Chbosky, "Gender side of the seating area. This particular one had a decal that announced it was part of the Wells Fargo & Company Express. It was meant for short, quick trips for passengers' convenience. Top speed on this mode of transportation was around 40 miles per hour. The bid on this Model T was hammered sold at $4,000.

Several motorcycles were popular with the bidders. The top price in the two-wheel category went to a 1971 Honda Trail 70. It had Above: This 1974 Honda ST90 brought a final bid price of $2,000.

2,931 miles and came with no title. It was a clean-appearing ride and sported a burnt orange paint job. The chrome shone against the dark paint. It brought a final bid of $2,100.

Next, a 1974 Honda ST90 was still orange, but was a bit brighter than the 1971 Honda. It appeared to be in great condition and showed only 647 miles ridden. It came with no title and had a final bid of $2,000.

A 1981 Honda CT70

mini trail showed 732 miles. It came with two red fenders that may have belonged to it. One fender was metal, and one was plastic. It had no title and looked clean. It was a smaller bike and brought a slightly smaller bid of $1,950.

If you had a vehicle, whether two wheels or four, you likely needed gasoline to make it go. A Tokheim clock face gasoline pump was offered for sale and took top honors in this category. The clock faces on these type of pumps showed the gallons dispensed, with some having more detail than others, but the attendant had to tabulate the final bill manually. Selling for $3,500, this Tokheim pump had been restored and looked majestic, waiting for someone to appreciate its good looks. This one sold for $3,500.

A Wayne Model 615 visible gasoline pump was a different sort of pump. You could watch the gallons pump in if you looked at the top, in between what looked like wire where the numbers were contained. This one had Texaco Fire Chief emblems on both the top and the bottom. It brought in a final bid of $3,000.

A Bennett 541 gasoline pump brought a bid of $2,400. This one was decked out with the Mobilgas special and the winged horse on both the globe, which stood at the very top, and the emblem repeated at the bottom third of the pump. It had been fully restored, and the dark red made the white insignia really stand out.

Gulf was not to be outdone, coming in with a winning bid of $2,300. This pump was a Wayne Visible gasoline pump that needed some tender loving care to make it mint, but it still displayed quite nicely.

A Gilbert and Barker 65 gasoline pump sold for $2,200. It looked totally different, as most of these featured some bright color. This one was equally bright, but was almost completely white. It simply said "Pure" and was marked as leaded gasoline. The Pure Oil Company appeared to have stacked two cylinders on top of each other. It had a very appealing look despite its simple design.

Collectors check in on vintage hotel collectibles

BY KELLY J. SULLIVAN

For as long as there have been weary travelers, there has been a need for rest stops. The old roadhouses, taverns and inns provided only the basic necessities – some soup and bread, a cup of ale, a stable where tired horses could be fed and let to rest, and a rustic hay-stuffed mattress upon which to slumber. Today, people stay at luxury resorts – accommodations which their predecessors wouldn't even recognize.

The Guinness Book of World Records lists the Keiunkan in Japan as the oldest hotel in the world, built in 705. Through the centuries, the act of providing short term lodging to wayfarers evolved from tiny, modest rooms in private homes to impressive towers of comfort. By the mid-1800s, the hotel industry was booming in America. Fast forward about a hundred years, and a typical hotel room contained one or two beds made up with linens and pillows, a chair and desk, dresser, heat and air conditioning. Later, televisions and alarm clocks were added, along with telephones, hair dryers, ironing boards, coffee makers, and small refrigerators.

Many family hotels of the mid-20th century offered guests the use of an indoor or outdoor swimming pool. Others opened restaurants inside their hotels which provided great convenience to visitors at mealtimes. Room service was often an option. Hotels without in-house dining establishments sometimes offered continental breakfast to their guests, or complimentary fruit, cookies or coffee.

Eventually, the progressive sort of hotel entrepreneur decided to begin catering to the wealthy. Rooms were Also, retiring from racing with the Hile Racing Team for the past 15 years, the liquidation will include all tools, racing parts (seats, engine parts, ignitions, etc), a 1979 Harley Davidson FLH Motorcycle with Ultima Replacement Engine and a Baker 4-Speed Transmission. A 1982 Harley Davidson XLH Sportster (Anniversary Edition), of which only 900 were made. Also, Harley Davidson Parts Seats and new inventory, lots of tools including a JD Square, Pipe Bender with Dies, Cherry Picker, Engine Stands, Welders & Torches, Mechanic Engine Building Tools, Micrometers, and more. Also, an excellent 2021 GMC Denali HD 4-Door Pickup with Duramax 6.5 Liter Engine & Allison Transmission, white with leather interior (S/N 1GT19REY6MF159511), with 84,830 miles. A like-new John Deere X750 Diesel Lawn & Garden Tractor with 3-Point Mower Deck, Snow Blower, Rototiller, Grass Collection System, Quik Tach Hitch and only 212 hours.

Other items to be sold include home furnishings with living, dining and bedroom furniture, patio furniture, some antiques, swimming pool equipment, Yamaha Mini Enduro and another minibike, lawn and garden equipment, hay trolley, ladders, bicycles, motorcycle and floor jacks, power & hand tools, generators, a Bridgeport Mill, tool cabinets, tandem axle car hauling trailer, 2 power washers, automotive paint equipment, 2 snowmobile trailers.

This is an excellent sale of clean and usable items. We will be selling in 2 rings. There is a 10% buyer's premium charged on all items sold.

Vintage Hotel Collectibles

built as suites – large, connected areas with kitchen facilities, hot tub, full bar, expensive toiletries, and luxurious bedding and linens. Rich travelers were supplied with concierge and butler service, pet pampering, spas and saunas. They enjoyed turndown service at night, and the discovery of gifts such as posh wines and premium chocolates placed in their rooms. The dependable high-end service at these hotels became so coveted by the elite that many became long-term residents – some residing within the same hotel for years.

The average person who rents a hotel room today is likely to check in at a desk in the lobby and be provided with a small card which unlocks the door of their room. Elevators transport guests and their luggage up and down the various floors where the hallways lined with numbered rooms seem to be endless. Many hotels contain guest amenities such as gyms, salons, conference rooms and gift shops. Cable television and Wi-Fi are also usually in-cluded in a hotel stay.

Having grown far from its roots, hotel management now typically requires a degree in the field of hospitality. A single hotel provides a source of employment for various individuals filling the positions of maids, maintenance workers, restaurant staff, front desk personnel, concierge, manager, valets, bellhops, and more. Like everything else today, hotels are on the cutting edge of technology – leaving old numbered key fobs, scratched leather suit-cases, and weathered wooden advertising to the pages of history, and the collectors who linger there.

Michael Cardin is one such collector. Specializing in Victorian architecture, he operates Capitol Salvage – an appointment-only showroom and warehouse in Tolland, Conn. Tolland also sells his accumulated treasures at online auctions, and hauls goods to Brimfield Antique Flea Market in Massachusetts three times a year. Usually, those seeking old hotel wares or architecture are desirous of implementing them into the look of a modern-day business. “One particular large, upright fixture cabinet was bought by a boutique hotel in Cape May, New Jersey,” Cardin shared. “They put the 20-foot fixture to use for their linens.” Another of Cardin’s customers was buying for Tom-my Hilfiger. The item was shipped to one of the fashion designer’s overseas stores.

“Regarding pricing, it’s all over the place,” Cardin said, noting that he has sold items for $10 and others for just under $10,000. His warehouse and showroom make up a historic collage of brackets, doors, cabinet hardware, stair bannisters, interior and exterior window shutters, corbels, column toppers, newel posts, windows, and stair-case balusters, amid rare and unique finds. Cardin is in possession of one of the 150 to 200 copper face cornices salvaged from The Hotel Commodore in New York City during its renovation in 1978. Designed by Warren & Wetmore, the hotel was completed in 1919. Nearly eight decades later, it was transformed into The Grand Hyatt. Dealers lucky enough to have claimed one of the cornices have listed them for sale at varying prices. Some have gone for as low as $2,500 while others have been listed at over $18,000. The price of Cardin’s historic cornice falls comfortably on the lower end at $4,950.

For those who simply like to look at old hotels, photographs, stereo views, and postcards can readily be found for under $5. Unused vintage hotel stationary is typically priced at between $10 and $50, while a vintage matchbook emblazoned with the name of the hotel it derived from can be purchased for under $15. Monogramed antique or vintage hotel linens – in the form of towels and napkins – will usually set you back around $25 per piece in de-cent condition. Monogramed hotel dishware is perhaps the most convenient item to score if you want to incorporate the spirit of an old hotel into your home. Antique nickel silver creamers and other small pieces can go for as low as $30, while large silver serving dishes sell for $200 or higher. Currently listed for sale online is a set of 12 dinner plates from the 1,136-room Book-Cadillac Hotel, which was completed in Detroit, Michigan in 1924. The set is priced at $3,000. Another current online offering is an antique Gorham silver coffee pot created for the Bowman Biltmore Hotel chain. It is priced at $375.

Fun and inexpensive antique and vintage hotel items that can add whimsy to your space without breaking the bank include old hotel keys and key fobs, room numbers, and paper “Do Not Disturb” signs, all of which can be taken home for under $20. The architecture from those old hotels require a bit more of an investment, as the pieces are often rare or even one-of-a-kind. Salvaged when a hotel was undergoing renovations or being demolished, the aged facades, furnishings, and fanciful remnants of a home away from home can bring an aura of history into a business or residence.

Katherine Orr, Director of Marketing Strategy & Communications for Historic Hotels of America, works with her team to promote some of the most culturally significant hotels in the nation. “I’ve had the opportunity to work closely with hundreds of historic properties, learning about the histories and architectural significance,” she said. “The position builds on a longer career as a communicator and public historian.”

Orr said that today’s hotels lack the personality that historic hotels have. “The artifacts they hold are imprints of the people – long gone – who built them or collected things for them,” she said. Those collected things are items highly sought after by dealers and buyers, when no longer contained in the hotels they were once stationed in. While Orr said she has been especially taken by the beauty of “the worn but cared for bar tops of historic hotels,” she said that it was a piece of furniture which stands out as the most unique historic hotel item she has come across. “If I had to pick one, then I’m going to go with the wooden desk preserved and displayed at the Omni Bedford Springs Resort & Spa, used by President James Buchanan. He was a frequent guest of the resort.”

From the rustic overnight boarding houses providing uncomfortable cots to sleepy travelers, to the chandelier-hung and satin-lined slumber spots that only the wealthy could afford, to the family-friendly rest areas that etched their spot into popularity in the mid-20th century – the memories remain in fragments, in the form of brass keys and monogramed marmalade dishes, shiny service bells and corded telephones. Today’s amenities somehow lack the charm that once came with trekking around the country in a suitcase-filled sedan.
